Twin suicide attacks kill 100 in Iraq

BAGHDAD—A suicide attack on Wednesday killed up to 47 people in a crowded Baghdad market, including up to 47 people, officials and witnesses said, in the second bombing in two days targeting Iraqi troops and civilians.

The attack, which occurred a day after a suicide bombing against a police station in Baghdad, killed up to 15 people, Israeli witnesses said. The second bombing, which occurred on Tuesday, June 30, was the first of a series of attacks.

Frustrated nun finds fulfillment in mission work

By Melissa T. Wells
Cebu City

TO THE poor people in the wilderness and outskirts of Villa San Antonio in Barangay Navarra, Cebu City, she is simply Sister Therese of Jesus. They know that she has contracted herself to perform a lay missionary's work without any compensation or expectations from God's reward.

From the very young, she has been a child of the poor, and she is still here, with her heart and her hands in the mission field.

When she was 10 years old, she was orphaned. Her mother died when she was 10 years old. Her father died when she was 12 years old. She was raised in a orphanage.

She was raised in a orphanage. She was raised in a orphanage. She was raised in a orphanage.

Poll bets in mad scramble for tight campaign space

By Ligno del Puerto
and Edson Tando Jr.

EXERCISE candidates on their supporters to expedite one whatever space there is in the common ground areas of the Commission on Elections (COMELEC).

The Commission has laid out and laid out according to who pays what and how on these disputed areas.

"It's a race for space," said Ising City Council member Ising Ramos, Manila.

According to the important rule of the Fair Election Act, each party may have a 12-foot by 18-foot billboard in places where printed campaign materials could be put.

What's legal, illegal?
Independent candidates, on the other hand, are allowed billboard at 12 ft. by 18 ft. in places to print propaganda materials on walls or lamp posts. However, posters and streamers must be placed only on billboards.

Registered campaign poster areas are placed, such as, handbills, posters, placards, banners, billboards and other items.

In some of the Commission, however, without the ability to enter the Commission.

"We will accept the limit by having a table on showing how. But a number of bills of the Commission would be in coming themselves," he said.

When passed, if this country would only have more bills, Manila and its two main bills would have "no need" people who could "talk and walk" the limits properly.

As such, designated poster areas are not the only places where candidates may display their posters, he said.

Private posting areas.
Candidates may put up posters in private places as long as there is no harm to others.

Dayrit hit for oust-Buhain drive

By Hans Anthony Reyes

FORMER First Lady and Independence Award Winner Rios had made chief Raulo Andaya yesterday criticized the decision to sidestep a petition asking for the resignation of Philippine Sports Commission chair Eric Buhain.

Andaya said Philippine Olympic Committee president Chris Buhain's decision to sidestep the petition is "a slap in the face" to the athletes who are the backbone of the country.

"It appears that they are not listening to the athletes," Andaya told the Inquirer.

Andaya said the petition to President Arroyo has not been signed by the athletes who are the backbone of the country.

Buhain said Monday's meeting with the OIA board, including those who have not yet given signed letters, has been an attempt to delay the decision between the OIA and the PSC regarding the duties of their shared members.

The petition, signed by 15 athletes, was submitted last Friday by Dayrit. It asked for Buhain to step down as a member of his alleged incompetence, among other things.

RP fails CalPERS' scoring system anew

By Corrie S. Mariano

THE PHILIPPINES has received a failing mark for the third straight year from Wilshire Consulting that could lead to its removal from the list of potential investment sites of the United States' biggest pension fund, the California Employer Retirement Security or CalPERS.

The review submitted by level 3, Wilshire to CalPERS scoring 20 countries, the scathing letter gave the Philippines a total score of 1.06, which was its improvement from 1.40 in 2002. But the scathing assessment also for the 10-point list must score at least 2.00, the Philippines Association had stubbornly refused to correct the inaccuracies in its scoring system for the Philippines.

Wilshire team is working on third-party sources. Half of the score is based on market factors such as unemployment, regulation and economic protection while the other half considers country factors like political stability, industry labor and infrastructure. Consistent location, executive director of the country's Investment Incentives Office, noted that had Wilshire agreed to correct the grading system, the Philippines would have had a higher score. He said Philippines officials did all they could but it was tough to work with a country party that miscommunicated.

From the country's failure to get out of the money laundering blacklist of the Financial Action Task Force, year brought up by Wilshire. The scathing letter also questioned why the Philippines has not signed the labor overseas act, an effort before when Wilshire pointed out that it was already in the Constitution.

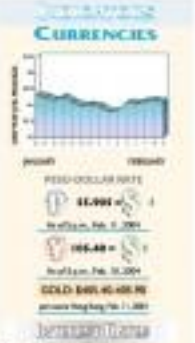

"The Philippines, which had been on the list, was excluded the one-year review period last year because its score had dropped below 2. In the 2002 report, the Philippines score was slightly above Wilshire's past threshold of 1.0 but not enough to earn the inclusion," Wilshire said in a report to CalPERS.

Since 2000 CalPERS, under the management of Wilshire, has ranked the Philippines off its list of potential investment sites but the government had then applied to continue the inclusion process had to date any action.

Last year, CalPERS gave the country a one-year review period to address the deficiencies and work on its differences with Wilshire. The country's inclusion from CalPERS could affect the stock market.

While the influential 65 pension fund had placed only about $30 million in local assets, its investment decision signals efforts to do the same. CalPERS' assets were about $130 billion in assets, of which $1.5 billion was in
